THE THEATER.

"The Valkyrie."

In order to give a proper interpretation of Wagner's Nibelungen Ring drama, "The Valkyrie," which has been selected to open the week of opera at the Columbia next Monday night, Manager Savage has found it necessary to begin the performance somewhat earlier than the regular time for raising the curtain on "Tannhauser," "Lohengrin" and -other German operas. Accordingly, when "The orchestra of nearly fifty musicians will start the brilliant descriptive prelude at 1:30 p.m., so that the final curtain on the last act may be rung down shortly after 5 o'clock. When "The Valkyrie" is to be sung at night Conductor Schenek assumes the baton at 7:30 p.m., the last curtain falling at 11:15 o'clock. The prelude is a part of the first act, and not an overture. Its sweeping melody tells the story of the wild storm in the forest and Sieg-mund's flight from his pursuers. The curtain rises while the storm music pic-tures the fierce battle of the elements, and the action of the opera starts at once with the hurried entrance of Siegmund to the sheltering abode of Sieglinde. The management urges all patrons to show their appreciation of this performance by being in their seats in time to hear the opera from the very beginning. Wagner insisted on beginning the "Ring" dramas at 5::30 o'clock in the afternoon, and this rule still holds at Beyreuth, but in America the time is set back two hours, and a scholarly condensation of the opera makes the performance attractive to regular theater goers as well as to music students. The arrangement of performances during the week will be as follows:
Monday at 7:30 p.m., "The Valkyrie;"
Tuesday at 8:15 p.m., "Aida;" Wednesday at 8 p.m., "Lohengrin;" Thursday at 1:30 p.m., "The Valkyrie;" Thursday evening at 8:15, "Rigoletto;" Friday at 8:15 p.m.,
"La Roheme." Saturday at 2 p.m. "Tenn-"La Boheme;" Saturday at 2 p.m., "Tann-hauser;" Saturday evening at 8:15,

"The Pearl and the Pumpkin." One of the most sensational dancing acts in the history of stageland is to be introduced in the second act of "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," Klaw and Erlanger's imaginative and massive spectacle, which is to play a week's engagement at the New National Theater, opening on Monday evening. The act is that ment to be found south of New York. Also of the famous Ercole-Ariaza Castilian pure Lucca Olive Oil, Fancy Cheeses, Dried dancers and troubadours from the Theater Royal, Madrid. In this company are ten women and four men. They have recently been appearing at the New Amsterdam Theater, New York, where they duplicated their European success. The production of which this feature is an incident is one of the most extensive and elaborate creations that the spectacular stage has seen.

"The Winning Girl."

At the Belasco Theater on Monday, December 11, Manager Frank L. Perley will offer his new and original cross-country comedy with music, "The Winning Girl." The play is described as a radical departure from the musical comedies and comic operas of recent years, inasmuch as it presents a logical and well-defined plot. The company includes, besides Caro-line Hull, Charles Ross and Mabel Fenten, Frederick Bond, Blanche Deyo, Caroline Locke, Amy Lee, Harry Fairleigh, Fletcher Norton, Mart E. Heisey, Charles Halton and a large chorus.

Hazardous Globe. "The Hazardous Globe," a hippodromic sensation, will be presented at Chase's next week, and the perilous cycling around the interior of the huge steel lattice sphere will be done by "Wizard" Stone and Irene Stone. "Tainted Money" is the title of the sketch offered by Edward S. Kines and company Sydney Grant will give imitations of Chevaller, Cohan and others. Included in the bill are Signor Lulgi del Oro, in a musical novelty; Arthur Borani and Annie Nevaro, in a laughable English novelty; Coakley and McBride, in eccentric comedy; J. Warren Keane and his "spirit bell," and the motion pictures of "How Steel is Made."

The Fays.

The Fays are to open a week's engagement at the Majestic Theater on Monday next. This will be their second appearance within a year. On Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday they will give special matinees for ladies only. This will positively be their last appearance in this city, as other bookings make another return impossible. They mystify their audiences completely, and it is probable that they will be bombarded with questions during the engagement next week. The Fays are supported by a strong vaudeville company.

The big and little children of Washington will welcome the return of Ernest Thomp son Seton, the famous author of anima stories, who will give another of his lectures at the New National Theater on Saturday morning, December 16, at 11 o'clock. Mr. Seton's subject this time will be "Animal Heroes." Mr. Seton's lecture is illustrated with stereopticon views taken from actual photographs and the well-known pen sketches of Mr. Seton, who is not only an entertaining writer but an artist whose plctures have taken prizes in many high-class expositions of art.

Burton Holmes.

The last lecture in the Burton Holmes series will be given at the Columbia next Monday afternoon-Switzerland, part two. western. The travelogue begins with glimpses of two famous and attractive cities-Berne and Geneva-and takes the traveler along the vine-clad shores of Lake Geneva to the lovely little town of Vevey, last summer the scene of the most grandlose and beautiful outdoor spectacle of modern times, "the fete des Vignerons."

Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The concert of the Boston Symphony Orhestra at the National Theater yesterday afternoon was attended by a large and brilliant audience, including the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The program offered was of the extreme French school and there was not a number that was familiar to any in the audience except the musiclans. As Mr. Vincent d'Indy was the conductor, it was but natural that such should be the case if he had the making of the program, and it is but justice to the organization to say that the unmbers could not have been better played and to the conductor that they each received the best interpretation.

It is a question as to what rank the French school of composition shall take in the musical world. Some of the effects resulting from the combination of instruments are remarkably fine, notably the idea of exploiting a theme upon the woodwind or brass with a background of delicate embroidery of figurework on the strings, but the climaxes are usually mere noise without definite nurnose or irrelevant comparison with a Beethoven or Schubert or even a Tschaickowsky symphony it was tame and weak.

The second number was Cesar Franck's "Psyche et Eros," from the "Psyche" suite of that composer, and it was listened to with pleasure and at its conclusion was loudly applauded. It is one of the best ex-Valkyrie" is sung in the afternoon the out, and the hearers were relieved when it

The last number was M. d'Indy's "Istar" (variations symphoniques), which is practi-cally a symphonic poem and in which the composer displayed all his musical re-sources, and, as he held the baton, he got from the orchestra the full effect of his score. It was by far the best work of the afternoon, and at the close the conductor-composer was applauded so that he had to return again and again to bow his acknowl-

Interesting Talk by Prof. Hodgkins in. Free Course to People.

Howard L. Hodgkins, professor of phy sics, George Washington University, this city, gave the fourth lecture in the Public Library in the course of free lectures to the people last evening, when he took for his subject "Sound."

The professor discussed the methods of transmission of sound, the determination of the velocity in various media, the theories of reflection, of echoes, of whispering galleries. He explained to the audience the elements determining pitch and quality, as well as the elementary theory of the musi-cal scale. Many lantern slides were used, and in addition, numerous experiments were performed illustrating the stated theories in regard to resonance, pitch, heats and in terference, etc. Various methods of producing sound were shown, including simple tuning-forks, vibrating strings and organ pipes, as well as the less commonly seen methods with flames and vibrating meta plates.

After some discussion as to alterations and amendments to the by-laws, Mr. Hackett introduced Dr. H. W. Wiley, who gave an interesting address on some impressions of Cambridge, resulting from a recent visit to the home of Harvard University. He first spoke of the Harvard Union as an institution which bound the members and graduates more closely tomembers and graduates more closely together than anything else.

Then he spoke of the recent Harvard-Yale foot ball game, which he witnessed, and told of the splendid spirit shown by the Harvard team, notw.thstanding the many handleaps. He made a strong plea for the retention of foot ball among college sports, claiming for it the promot on of the best that there was in a young man-his grit, his endurance; all his manly qualities -and that foot ball, more than any other sport, brings out the best qualities of body and mind which goes to make the highest form of academic education. . Dr. Wiley was loudly applauded for his timely and excellent address and was given the Harvard cheer in ringing tones. Col-lege songs were then sung and refresh-

COLUMBIA HEIGHTS CITIZENS. Annual Meeting Held Last Night at Presentation of Gifts to President

Bundy and Secretary Todd. The Columbia Heights Citizens' Association, at its regular monthly meeting last night at the Savoy, took occasion to express high appreciation of the services of its president and secretary. E. Hilton Jackson, the spokesman, stated that for the past few years the association had been, as it were, a grand jury, inquiring into the conduct of the two officers, that it had been ascertained that always and everywhere they had been active in the interests of the community, and that there had been found the true bills of indictment now presented. These were a gold-headed cane for President Charles S. Bundy and a leather portfolio for Secretary W. B. Todd, each of whom made appropriate acknowledgment for the unexpected gifts.

A large range of subjects comprised the business of the meeting. George Simmons recommended that the association endeavor to have the act of June 20, 1902, amended so that the territory for underground telephone conduits be extended to include the subdivisions of Todd & Prown, Holmead Manor and Mount Pleasant. His motion to that effect was referred to the committee on poles and overhead wires. A resolution was adopted suggesting to the Commissioners, the varieties of shade trees suitable for planting along the streets. Upon motion of E. Hilton Jackson of the committee on Gibson of Julia V. Henry Ladies' Auxiliary, adopted suggesting to the Commissioners the varieties of shade trees suitable for parks approval was given to Commissioner Biddle's plan to establish small parks in the suburbs of the city.
At the suggestion of J. O. Johnson of the committee on law and legislation the asso-ciation heartily indorsed the bills now before Congress for establishing building lines and for regulating the operation of street rallways. Attention being called to the fact that Commissioners Biddle and West had been continued in office, the association ex-pressed its congratulations to each of these gentlemen upon such merited recognition of valuable services rendered in a most trying position. There was referred to the execu-tive committee a protest by Col. Stocking against the installation and maintenance of a high-pressure system of water mains. W. R. Hillyer was elected third vice presi dent, to succeed Judge C. F. Scott, recently
